To Whom It May Concern,

Last spring when we were looking for help in deciding whether buying and using a modular classroom building was feasible, Gary Cain of Rose Office Systems proved invaluable. Not only did he send us information, but he came for a campus visit and walked the campus by himself and then again with me. During that visit he listened carefully and promised me that he would consider our needs and then recommend a solution using a modular building. In almost no time at all, Gary had drawings back to me with a breakdown on expenses.

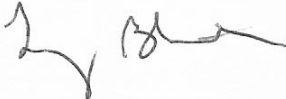

When I got to the point that I needed to present my plan to my Board of Trustees, Gary prepared an incredibly detailed booklet for each of my board members. At the board meeting, Rose Office Systems was awarded the opportunity to service our modular building needs because he took the time to "do it right." The proposal included everything we needed to know. There were no hidden costs!

Once we decided to place an order, Gary was most helpful in making sure that we ordered exactly what we wanted and still remained within our price limitations. During the actual production process, he kept us informed of time lines and made sure that we had all of the information we need to place the building and get it permitted. In fact, I recall that Gary made three different visits to our campus.

The building is in use now and we are delighted with it. We would not consider anyone else for our next modular building needs.

Please contact me if I can answer any questions for you.

Sincerely,

Tony Blanton, Ed.D.
